3 BELOW ZERO SETS 4-YEAR RECORD HERE

Mercury Falls Rapidly Early Today; No Immediate Moderation Seen.

Thermometers in Marion registered three degrees below zero at 11 a. m. today, continuing an early morning drop which sent the mercury skidding to the year's first sub-zero temperature.

It was the coldest weather Marion has experienced since 1936. On Jan. 22, 1936, the mercury slid 18 degrees below the zero line, the coldest January night since the 22-below of 1899.

The mercury had dropped to one degree below at 8 a. m., a rapid fall coming in the hours after midnight, followed by a steady decline after 6 a. m.

During this morning's quick temperature change a thermometer at Central fire station registered eight degrees at 7 a. m. and one and one-half hours later, at 8:30, had dropped to one below, firemen reported.

By noon it was three below and the prospects of a temperature of 10 below before tomorrow was noted by weather observers. At 2:45 the mercury had advanced to 7 above. Weather officials asserted no "break" is in sight for at least 24 hours.

Inch and a Half of Snow

Snowfall in Marion during the 24 hours preceding 8 a. m. today measured one and one-half inches, Weather Observer E. H. Raffensperger reported. The maximum temperature was 21, while a year ago the mercury ranged between 38 and 41.

The sixth day of frigid weather found the state frozen at both northern and southern extremities, its highway arteries glazed and the landscape buried more deeply under snow.

Cincinnati continued in the role of Ohio's "ice box" by reporting a season's record, a 4-degree drop from 1 a. m. to 8 a. m. Meterologist W. C. Devereaux reported, "it may go to 10 below tonight."

The bureau at Cincinnati reported "somewhat heavier ice" along the 980-mile Ohio river and "heavy" formations ranging from three to four inches in thickness from Wheeling, W. Va., to Pomeroy, O.

Lake Heavily Frozen

In Sandusky bay on Lake Erie commercial fishermen prepared to cut ice eight inches thick. Floating ice choked the Ohio river and ferry service was halted at several points. Fresh snow made central Ohio roads slippery. In the northwest and east sections high winds drifted snow, and highway department workers pressed sanding and cindering operations.

Mercury's Drop Charted

Hourly readings on the recording thermometer of the Erie railroad reveals the biggest temperature change came between 5 and 7 a. m. today when the mercury dropped from 10 above to two degrees below. The hourly readings since last night follow: 9 p. m., 24 degrees; 10, 11 and midnight, 23 degrees; 1 and 2 a. m. 22 degrees; 3 a. m., 18 degrees; 4 a. m., 12 degrees; 5 and 6 a. m., 10 degrees; 7 a. m. to 11 a. m., two degrees below zero; noon, zero; 1 p. m., two degrees above zero.

snow and lower temperatures. Fair and colder with below zero temperatures tonight, with fair weather Saturday and slowly rising temperatures in the afternoon is the official forecast.

Columbus reported three and one-half inches of snow and a sub-zero temperature. Zanesville had a two-inch snowfall and other areas reporting heavy snow included Mansfield, Cleveland, Youngstown and Cambridge.

While the temperature in lower Michigan sank as far as an unofficial six below zero at Jackson, the weather in the north central part of the state was almost mild. Ludington, a Lake Michigan port, reported 23 above.

A light snow fell in western Nebraska, where the temperatures ranged from 13 above, but far-

Galion Woman 100 Tuesday

MRS. MARTHA R. CRIM

Mrs. Martha R. Crim Former Bank Director, One of Library Founders; Has 80-Year-Old Daughter.

Special to The Star

GALION, O., Jan. 5 — Next Tuesday one of Galion's outstanding women will celebrate her one hundredth birthday anniversary.

She is Mrs. Martha R. Crim of Harding Way-W, pioneer school teacher, bank director in the '90's, one of the founders of the Galion public library and one of the leaders who established Good Samaritan hospital here.

That she looks 30 years younger than her actual 100 years may be due to the active life she has lived. She is in fairly good health and it was only five years ago that she gave up attending the regular meetings and Christmas parties of her various clubs.

After she reached the age of 90 Mrs. Crim often told club associates, "I'm going to live to be 100."

Enjoys Radio

Seated in a favorite chair, she listens from morning until night to her radio, rarely leaving her home these days. Unimpaired hearing permits her to listen to the radio, one of the marvels of the century in which she has lived. Last October Mrs. Crim took her last short walk down the street from her home.

Born in Juniata county in Pennsylvania on Jan. 9, 1840, Mrs. Crim was only six years of age when her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Casner, brought her to Galion. The family made the long trip across the western Pennsylvania mountains to the then crossroads village in a small wagon.

Mrs. Crim was among the pioneers in the field of education for women. After attending a log cabin school in Galion she went on to further study at Union school in New Philadelphia and at Oberlin college.

She became a village school teacher, at pay of a few dollars a month, and had to walk two miles from her home to the school.

Was Bank Director

She was married to C. S. Crim, one of the founders of the First National bank of Galion and its president until his death in 1895. Mrs. Crim was on the bank's board of directors before the death of her husband and continued to serve as a director until 1933.

For years Mrs. Crim held claim to being the oldest active club woman in the state. At 100 she still holds her membership in the Current News club, the city's oldest literary club, of which she was one of the founders.

She was one of the founders of the Galion public library and served as president of the library board for years. She also was active in establishing Good Samaritan hospital here.

Has Daughter 80

Mrs. Crim is a member of First Methodist church and the Women's Christian Temperance Union and is a charter member of both the Galion Garden club and the Arts and Crafts club.

She has two children living, an 80-year-old daughter, Mrs. George S. Crim of San Francisco, and a son, Charles S. Crim, who lived at home. She has four grandchildren and one great-grandchild.

Mrs. Crim will observe her hundredth birthday anniversary quietly, with a family dinner.

14 IN TOLEDO C. I. O. UNION ARE INDICTED

Face Blackmail Charges in Connection with Strike.

By The Associated Press

TOLEDO, O., Jan. 5—Fourteen officials, agents, members and employes of Toledo local No. 346, Oil Workers International union, a C.I.O. affiliate, are under indictment of eight counts of blackmail, it was revealed this afternoon when they surrendered at the Lucas county courthouse.

The indictment is based on an alleged acts of extortion in connection with the four-month strike at the Gulf Refining Co., which was settled Sept. 28.

Those under indictment are John A. Gore, Clyde Shamblen, Almon W. McDonald, Robert Nichols, Gustave Wohlers, Frank Thomas, Lee A. Holmes, George Perry, Lafe A. Teeter, Paul Wilcam, Clarence Eddy, Dawson Haggard, Claude Lassiter and Harry Duvall.

The indictment alleges that these men actively engaged in the management and conduct of the business of the union and the handling of a strike called, prosecuted, and participated in by the union against and at the Gulf Refining Co., May 20.

Four counts of the indictment allege blackmail in connection with employes not members of the union and a like number of counts charge extortion in connection with four members of the union.

Generally the indictment charges that these defendants conspired together with intent to extort and to compel those complainants not members of the union to join and pay an initial fee of $10 a month, plus dues of $2 a month, and a contribution of 50 per cent of their wages.

SKIING FINNISH BORDER RAIDS HARRASS REDS

Hand-to-Hand Fighting Rules; Railroad Reported Cut at Points.

BULLETIN

By The Associated Press

HELSINKI, Jan. 5—The Finnish high command tonight reported continued successes on the eastern fronts, with the Finns killing 400 Russians and taking 40 prisoners in two encounters.

* * *

WITH FINNISH FORCES ON THE LAKE KIANTA FRONT, Jan. 5 — The Finns apparently held the initiative in a roving, hit-and-run war today deep in the brooding forests along both sides of the frontier in this wild northland.

Skiing Finnish patrols were reported to have cut the Murmansk railroad at several places after forays deep into Soviet territory. The railroad is the only supply line to harrassed Red army forces in the far north.

Part of Drive

The raids against the railroad, which winds through the lake-dotted Russian wilderness at distances of from 50 to 150 miles from the border, were said to have been part of an encircling drive by Finns pursuing remnants of the routed 163rd Russian division.

The crushing defeat of the Russian column on frozen Lake Kianta ended, at least temporarily, the Red army's threat of splitting Finland in two with a drive across her narrow "waist", and opened the way for the Finnish sallies.

With the main bodies of both armies lying back now, the fighting has been largely hand-to-hand guerrilla skirmishes between ski soldiers, mostly in Russia, and ambushes by the white-clad Finns who sweep in sudden attacks and vanish.

There no longer is a well-defined battle line in this meandering warfare in a zone that takes 40 hours to tour by automobile.

War and Peace

War and peace mingle strangely close to the embattled areas. Along the roads to the front in the Arctic darkness one sees a milk-maid on the way to her morning chores and, returning at night, the automobile's headlights pick out a boy pumping a bicycle.

Occasionally a reindeer slips across the one good road to the frontier.

It is a rolling road over which the car bobs at about 30 miles an hour something like a ship at sea. It is cut through solid forests,

12 MOTORISTS FINED IN TRAFFIC DRIVE

Police To Check on Those Who Fail To Report.

Twelve motorists were fined $2 each in traffic court this morning when they pleaded guilty to violations of the city's traffic code. This brought to 14 the number of $2 fines meted out by Municipal Judge W. Dexter Hazen since police started an intensive "tagging" campaign Wednesday afternoon.

A total of 64 traffic tag cases were scheduled in traffic court this morning but only about one-third of that number reported, court officials said. Police Chief Marks said that the other motorists will receive written notices within the next few days warning them that they face arrest unless they answer the citations.

Most of the motorists who reported in court today were charged either with alley parking or parking on the left instead of the right side of the street. Eleven of the group entered pleas of guilty while the twelfth fined this morning first pleaded not guilty and later changed his plea to guilty, court officials reported. Six truck drivers cited for alley parking were excused because they were unloading merchandise.

Chief Marks said today that the department's tagging campaign is "not just another spasmodic traffic drive" but will continue indefinitely in an attempt to relieve traffic congestion and reduce driving hazards. More than a score of automobiles were tagged in the residential districts last night for parking on the wrong side of the street, he reported.

December Factory Employment Near 80 Per Cent Mark

Employment in Marion during December was about 79½ per cent of normal, according to an estimate made by the Marion Chamber of Commerce in its business statistics bulletin mailed to members today. The employment estimate, which was one and one-half per cent lower than the Chamber's estimate for November, is based on reports from nine factories, according to the bulletin. The nine factories reporting listed their December employment at 3,823.

Bank clearings during December amounted to $1,210,073.75 while postal receipts here amounted to $20,145.67, a gain of 10.15 per cent over December, 1938, the bulletin states. Sales tax receipts for the year up to Dec. 16 were $45,938.59 or approximately 20 per cent higher than in the corresponding period in 1938. Utility companies reported there were 6,907 water meters, 5,650 telephones, 8,000 domestic electric meters and 8,804 gas meters in service in Marion homes during the month.

The 503 relief cases reported for the month was on a par with 504 cases being handled here in November, the report shows. The number of WPA workers, however, dropped substantially from 749 in November to 460 in December.

A slight upturn was reported in used car sales during the month. Ninety-eight used passenger cars and five used trucks were sold during December as compared to 92 passenger cars and three trucks during November.

LEADERS BLAST NAVY'S PLAN

Even New Dealers Hit Proposal To Give Roosevelt Power Over Plants.

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON, Jan. 5—A blast of criticism indicated today that the navy's recommendation to give the President peacetime emergency power to commandeer factories for naval construction faced formidable opposition in congress.

Even long-time supporters of the administration, such as Senator Minton of Indiana, the Democratic whip, joined in bi-partisan opposition to the proposal, made by Secretary Edison in a letter to Speaker Bankhead.

The proposal, which would broaden the powers now delegated to the President only in wartime, was being widely discussed as the administration pushed ahead with its defense program.

To Strengthen Pacific

Detailing major plans for the next 18 months, the army and navy disclosed intention of strengthening materially their fortifications in the Pacific area.

The war department announced at the same time that all four field armies, made up of regular army and national guard troops, would take part for the first time late next summer in war games of at least three weeks' duration.

In the Pacific an outstanding military move scheduled is the construction of a major army air base near Anchorage, Alaska. The base was one of six authorized in 1935, and the others have been started.

To a $4,000,000 estimated outlay for the year ending next June 30, the war department pay-as-you-go plan would add $12,000,000 to be made available in the following 12 months. Officials said the work would be pushed to rapid completion.

Roosevelt's Men May Rule Court for Two Decades

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON, Jan. 5 — Elevation of Frank Murphy to the supreme court will give Roosevelt appointees majority control of the tribunal for possibly two decades, barring deaths, resignations or removals.

Nomination of the 48-year-old attorney general yesterday as Mr. Roosevelt's fifth appointee on the nine-man court may well imprint the new deal hallmark on its opinions for many years after the President's own retirement from office.

Praises Appointments

Discussing Mr. Roosevelt's lower court appointments, Murphy himself said yesterday that "for years the country will watch the work and receive the benefits of the wisdom of these men of learning and integrity."

Senate comment indicated that Murphy would be confirmed promptly but he may not take his seat for a month in order to clean up his work in the justice department.

He will be the second youngest member of the court. The oldest Roosevelt appointee is Felix Frankfurter, 57, who would serve 20 years more if he remains until he is as old as Chief Justice Hughes and Justice McReynolds.

The youngest is William O. Douglas, 41. Should he remain on the bench only until reaching the average age of the four non-Roosevelt appointees, he would still be serving 30 years from now.

His Background

Besides comparative youth, Murphy shares with three other Roosevelt appointees a background of government service. He has been mayor of Detroit, commissioner to the Philippines, governor of Michigan and attorney general.

On the bench he will join two of his predecessors as attorney general — Justices McReynolds and Stone.

Like Justice McReynolds, Murphy is a bachelor. Where McReynolds is outspoken and sometimes abrupt, Murphy follows a private precept: "speak softly and hit hard."

Like Chief Justice Hughes, Murphy is a churchman. Hughes is a Baptist, Murphy a devout Catholic, once called a "lay bishop" by the late Cardinal Mundelein.

HOUSE CHIEF AGREES

Joint Committee Would Study Needs; Draws Opposition.

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON, Jan. 5—Chairman Doughton (D-NC) of the house ways and means committee tentatively indorsed today the Harrison proposal that congress make up its own budget and tax program this session.

After a conference with President Roosevelt, who submitted his budget yesterday, Doughton said that for some time he had had in mind the same kind of fiscal study which Senator Harrison (D-Miss), chairman of the senate finance committee, advocated last night.

Harrison called for creation of a 24 member senate-house committee to investigate budget and tax needs for two months while congress was concerned with other problems. His recommendation drew some qualified approval as well as strong opposition from other congressmen.

Advises Cooperation

Doughton said at the White House that he thought there "should be close cooperation between the finance, ways and means and appropriations committees" before their various financial measures are started through congress.

Asked whether he believed that appropriation bills should be delayed until the Harrison study had been completed, Doughton said that would be all right "if we could do it without prolonging the session too long."

"I don't think it should take long and it looks as if sixty days would be ample," he added.

Much ground work, which would be helpful, already has been done, he explained, saying that congressional tax experts have been at work for many weeks so that the tax problem now is largely a matter of agreeing on the type of levy that would be "most feasible and equitable."

Has Own Schedule

The house appropriations committee has worked out a 14-week schedule providing for consideration on the floor of one measure a week. To abandon this would leave the house with nothing to do, its chiefs said.

Representative Taber of New York, senior Republican on the committee, said he would "welcome any study that would tend to show what the situation is," but added:

"I'm sure we could get along with considerably less than the $6,424,000 the President estimated was needed" for 1940-41.

A few senators thought Harrison's idea sound, but said they did not believe that house work should stop while the joint committee sat.

With both houses in recess until Monday, senate Republicans called a conference to go over Mr. Roosevelt's "bedrock" budget and his recommendation that new taxes be levied for $480,000,000 of extraordinary armament needs.

Most members of both houses expressed gratification that the President is proposing lower appropriations except for defense and a consequent diminishing [illegible]

Ashley Sailor on Panay Tells Kiwanis of Sinking of U. S. Ship by Japanese

A vivid description of the sinking of the U. S. S. Panay by Japanese bombs on Dec. 11, 1937, was given at a luncheon meeting of the Marion Kiwanis club at Hotel Marion yesterday.

The speaker was Peres Ziegler of near Ashley who was one of the seamen aboard the Panay who was seriously injured in the bombardment. He was discharged from the navy after spending nearly a year in hospitals receiving treatment of his injuries.

Mr. Ziegler told his audience that he had been in the navy three years when, in 1935, he was transferred from Norfolk, Va., to the Far East fleet operating out of Nanking and assigned to the Panay, one of several small American naval ships assigned to patrol duty on the Yangtze river to visit treaty ports and protect trade.

Experience Interesting.

At first, the 52 men assigned to the Panay feared their assignment would prove uninteresting for most of them had been accustomed to larger ships and more extensive travels. However, the men soon discovered that the assignment gave them an opportunity to observe much of China's life and after the outbreak of the undeclared Japanese-Chinese war afforded them an opportunity to observe much of the hostilities.

It was not until Dec. 10, 1937, one day before the fatal bombing that the sailors realized their position was extremely hazardous, the speaker stated. On that day, the Panay and a British tanker were the objects of an extensive Japanese bombardment which damaged the British ship but did not damage the Panay.

Following the attack the Panay moved up the river beyond Nanking and on the next day, Sunday, Dec. 11, the destructive bombardment occurred.

Three Planes Attack.

The ship's crew, tired from the quickly shifting operations of the last few days had been placed on "holiday routine" and most of the seamen were sleeping at 1:26 p. m. when the attack started. Three Japanese planes, flying low, passed over the ship and each dropped a 100-pound bomb, he recalled. One bomb opened a 14-foot gap in the ship below the waterline, another wrecked one of the ship's two heavy guns and made the other unserviceable while the third went through the officers' cabin and badly damaged the keel.

Unable to use the two large guns, the men aboard the Panay fired at the bombers with machine guns but were unable to inflict extensive damage with the light weapons. Circling low, the bombers attacked the ship with bombs and machine gun fire for nearly two hours.

Shortly after the attack started the Panay's two small lifeboats were lowered and plans were made to transfer the crew from the ship to shore in small groups. As the lifeboats were preparing to make one of these trips to shore, the planes flew over at a low altitude and opened fire with machine guns, Mr. Ziegler said. One seaman was killed and several others injured. Ziegler, one of 11 men seriously injured, was hit by a piece of shrapnel which tore into his shoulder and lodged near his spine.

Many Badly Hurt.

After the attack, the men started a painful trek toward Nanking. Many of the men were so seriously injured they had to be carried on stretchers while the others were suffering badly from shock and weak from lack of food and water that they could hardly walk, he explained. For two days they wandered through swamps, hiding under vegetation most of the time as a precaution against another attack from the air. Then they received instructions to return to the scene of the Panay sinking where they were met by an American cruiser, a British ship and three Japanese battleships which took them to Shanghai.

Mr. Ziegler, who now operates a gasoline station at Mt. Gilead, was introduced by Cutler A. McGrew who presided for the first time as president of the club. Guests included L. L. Garver of Mt. Gilead and John Boerma of Chicago, Ill.

Restaurant Owner Believes Patrons Are Honest—They Add Own Checks

By CHARLES E. HARNER
Associated Press Writer

NEW YORK, Jan. 5—The sign on the wall says, "beef stew—25 cents."

Order beef stew; you'll like it. And when you leave, tell the cashier, "25 cents" and drop a quarter on his desk.

If you should happen to say, "10 cents", and leave only a dime, the chances are 100-to-1 you'll get away with it.

The Exchange Buffet Corp. has been operating 55 years on the basis that its customers are honest. Departing diners in the company's 25 restaurants just add up their bills in their heads and the cashiers accept what they are told.

The corporation operated at a loss last year and in five other depression years.

No Lack of Honesty

"But it's not because the customers weren't honest," Gardner W. Millett, president, explained today. "It's just that there weren't enough customers."

The Exchange buffet earnings report may be regarded as something of a barometer of Wall Street employment. The main buffets are down in the financial district—they got their name from the stock exchange—and when "The Street" employs plenty of clerks, runners and vice presidents, Exchange buffet earnings boom.

In 1929 and 1930, for example, the chain's profits were more than half a million dollars a year. But in the last fiscal year the company operated at a loss of more than $83,000, and the present fiscal year's loss may be even greater.

Vacant Space Cuts Profit

"It's been a bad year," said Millett. "That's to be expected when you realize there are between eight and nine million square feet of vacant office space in the Wall Street district."

When offices are vacant men are out of work. Even men out of work have to eat. Do they eat 40 cents worth and tell the cashier they've only had a cup of coffee?

"Not often," Millett said. "You see, there aren't many cheaters. The company's records run back to 1885 and provide excellent standards of receipts and expenditures."

But isn't this New York, the tough town, the city of lambs and wolves, where the motto is never-give-a-sucker-a-break?

"Listen," said Millett, "I know a church near Washington Square where the doors haven't been locked day or night for years. Nothing has ever been stolen from that church.

"The average man prefers to be honest. We'll keep on operating on that principle."

INSURANCE OFFICE TO BE RELOCATED

Sale of Cincinnati Company Results in Change Here.

The Ohio National Life Insurance Co. of Cincinnati has taken over the Columbia Life Insurance Co., also of Cincinnati, and as a result will take over the Columbia company's district office which has been located in Marion, it was announced today.

The district office of the Columbia company has been in charge of F. A. Pickering and has been located at 123½ South State street. The office will be moved to a new location by Feb. 1 with Mr. Pickering as district manager for the Ohio National company in charge of Marion, Morrow and Wyandot counties and the western half of Crawford county including Bucyrus.

The Ohio National Life Insurance Co., which has $200,000,000 of insurance in force and $53,000,000 assets, took over the Columbia's $5,000,000 assets and insurance in force amounting to $25,000,000, without making any changes in the policies.

KENTON MOTORIST JAILED AND FINED

Morgan Winget of Kenton was fined $10 and costs and sentenced to one day in the county jail when he pleaded guilty to a reckless driving charge in municipal court yesterday afternoon. Municipal Judge W. Dexter Hazen also suspended his driving rights for 15 days.

Mr. Winget was cited to appear in court by State Patrolman T. B. Morgan who charged that he was driving at a dangerous rate of speed about five miles west of Marion on Route 30-S Wednesday night.

One case was released from quarantine.

Dr. Weinbaum held three consultations with physicians, attended five conferences on public health, collected four samples of water, made four visits to communicable disease cases, examined 23 school children, issued four working certificates, conducted five general investigations and attended a two-day health commissioners' conference at Columbus.

Thomas, city nurse, reported 226 visits including three to venereal disease cases, seven to maternity cases, 52 in behalf of infant welfare, 45 to deliver mother's certificates, 23 to pre-school cases, 12 to crippled children, 57 in connection with social service work and 13 to communicable cases. Police Chief Marks, sanitary inspector, reported he issued three orders to clean up premises, two to clean and repair toilets, two to remove garbage, four to remove trash, cans and ashes, 10 to remove dead dogs and cats and one to place quiet zone cards. He also reported he conducted six general investigations.

Gruber, milk division inspector, reported he inspected seven milk plants and reinspected three, inspected three farms and reinspected one, inspected 710 milk cans and rejected 24, collected 335 samples for sediment, inspected 59 cows, inspected 445 empty milk cans of which 4 were rejected and 42 ordered rewashed and rejected 160 gallons of milk. He also inspected five groceries and meat markets, collected one water sample and issued four general orders of which two were complied with.

REDS IN PACT WITH BULGARIA

Report Commercial Treaty Is Concluded; Deals on with Japan and Germany.

By The Associated Press

MOSCOW, Jan. 5 — Soviet Russia was reported to have concluded a commercial treaty with Bulgaria, opening a largely undeveloped trade field, while similar negotiations were begun with Japan and continued with Germany.

Bulgarian sources said the pact, which might be signed today, dealt principally with a Black Sea shipping accord, and that political questions were not involved.

(There had been rumors in Sofia that Russia might make military demands in connection with the treaty. Commercial relations between the two countries have been almost nonexistent. Figures for 1938 show that Russia bought less than $200 worth of Bulgarian merchandise.

(Bulgaria looked for the treaty to spread her present concentration on the German market and to increase Black Sea traffic.

A Japanese delegation which arrived in Moscow yesterday was expected to conduct lengthy trade negotiations.

(With the imminent end of Japan's trade treaty with the United States Jan. 26, Japanese quarters have said that Japan must find other sources of supply, suggesting Russia for this role).

Tass, official Soviet news agency, said that Constantin Smetanin, Russian ambassador in Tokyo, received last night a check for 5,809,565 yen ($1,365,247) as Manchoukuo's final payment for the former Chinese Eastern railway.

Japan acted as intermediary in 1935 when Russia sold her share in the 1,000-mile line to Manchoukuo. Final payment had been withheld pending settlement of other issues, but was agreed upon when Japan obtained a one-year extension of fishing rights in Russia's far eastern waters last Dec. 31.

Dr. Karl Ritter, head of a German economic delegation which has been discussing details of a trade agreement here for several weeks, left Wednesday for Berlin, but most of the delegates remained in Moscow.

1940 MEETING HELD BY OHIO EDUCATORS

Teacher Tenure Problems Are Stressed as Session Opens.

COLUMBUS, O., Jan. 5 — Teacher tenure problems crowded to the forefront today as instructors and school administrators opened the Ohio Education association's annual two-day convention here.

Representatives of Ohio's 42,000 teachers considered an executive committee recommendation for organizing a campaign for teacher tenure legislation in Ohio.

Other agenda matters included a program to recodify state school laws and reaffirmation of association support for a state board of education proposal, defeated in the November election.

A lively contest tomorrow for association president was in prospect. Candidates who have announced for the post held by Supt. George A. Bowman of Lakewood schools (former Marion superintendent) are: Dr. E. J. Ashbaugh, Miami university education dean; C. D. Van Tassel, Toledo high school teacher, and Supt. James M. Turner of McConnelsville. Supt. Carl Coffren of Akron bears the nominating committee's indorsement.

Preliminary meetings last night included one by Ohio College association committeemen seeking to evaluate student social activities and another between school superintendents and merchandising group representatives.

Miss Marguerite Lowe, state supervisor of distributive sales education, told superintendents that five year vocational courses for high school students not going to college would meet a pressing educational need.

"Statistics show that 35 per cent of high school graduates go out into selling jobs, yet only one-half of one per cent of them are being trained for the work," she asserted.

A total of 875 students in Cleveland, Columbus, Cincinnati, Toledo, Dayton and Canton high schools are enrolled in four-year courses stressing retail sales training, Miss Lowe said.

Budging the Budget

"THE budget of the United States government," says President Roosevelt, explaining why he thinks nothing much can be done immediately about budging it downward, "is a statement that reflects in money terms what the government does for the people and what the people contribute to the government."

This is what government is going to do for the people in the next fiscal year if congress sticks to the President's recommendations and doesn't decide to do extra things on its own responsibility:-

Give them $1,800,000,000 worth of defense; $1,300,000,000 worth of work relief; $900,000,000 worth of agricultural aid; $1,100,000,000 worth of public works and "investments"; $1,200,000,000 worth of pensions and other forms of personal assistance; $1,000,000,000 worth of plain, ordinary government; $1,100,000,000 worth of public debt interest.

It will be noticed immediately that in the things that make up the total of $8,400,000,000, interest on the public debt is going to cost more than plain, ordinary government. That used to be the only kind there was, except national defense of course, now segregated as a separate item in an attempt to keep the tail from wagging the dog, since it is the largest single item of expenditure.

It will be noticed, also, that President Roosevelt says interest on the public debt would be even larger than it is were it not for the low interest rates now prevailing—rates that would rise, incidentally, if the United States began to invest more of the idle private capital the President says the government has been investing for it via government spending. But these things are not supposed to be noticed, except by persons who get cold feet about the new thought in public finance—the "realistic approach" as the President calls it. Part of the realism in the approach is taxation.

This is what government proposes that the people do for it in the next fiscal year in return for what it's going to do for them—"the other side of the budget," as Mr. Roosevelt calls it:-

Pay back $6,151,000,000 worth of revenue from taxes already in existence; also enough to meet all emergency expenditures for national defense (estimated at $272,000,000 for the rest of 1940 and $302,000,000 for the fiscal year beginning next July 1); also enough to meet parity payments in behalf of agriculture; also consent to whatever reductions have been made in the budget.

This last contribution is vitally important. On it depends the President's theory that ultimately the budget can be budged downward. This is to come about through continued government spending to produce more national income—to "energize" the country—so the people can pay more taxes. Somewhere along the line the government will find where it can spend less money and thus use the extra tax revenue to keep from going further into debt and ultimately to pay back some of the debt. If this seems extremely involved, it is, even when President Roosevelt simplifies it as he has done in his latest budget message. He has been simplifying it for years—even going to the extreme of saying it's easy to understand without simplification—but most of his countrymen don't understand it yet.

About the only thing that's crystal clear to them is that when income has been subtracted from expenditures the actual deficit is a whale of a lot larger than the one predicted, which seems to tell the whole story of the new thought in public finance.

The Rope Cure

RECOMMENDATION by the Dies committee that "commies" and "bundies" be handled roughly by the law as agents of foreign governments engaged in illegal dirty work in the United States would have packed 10 times more punch a few months ago than it does now. Russia and Germany have plucked the stingers from their disciples abroad—what few they had.

It has been a favorite contention of one group of Americans for years that the best way to handle ism peddlers is to let them alone. They'll hang themselves if given enough rope; they have nothing to offer Americans but a lot of talk anyway.

To be sure, they snare a few suckers, malcontents and cheese-brains, but if they didn't, someone else would. As long as they confine themselves to yammering and do no direct damage, they are harmless—in fact, are useful because they prove this is a country strong enough to possess immunity to crackpots.

It's a matter of record that at this moment no American with a grain of sense can keep from grinning at the sorry plight of American "commies," betrayed by Joe Stalin, and the "bundies," betrayed by Adolf Hitler. Both have been made ridiculous, the thing they fear most. Whatever converts they gain in the United States from now on won't be missed. It's hard to see why the law should bother overly much with them, as long as they don't get obstreperous, when they've been marched to the gallows by their own white haired boys.

News Behind News

Hint of Possible Future Attitude Toward European War Seen in Roosevelt's Speech.

By PAUL MALLON

WASHINGTON, Jan. 5 — Mr. Roosevelt seems to have further undisclosed steps in mind in connection with this Anglo-French war to suppress Hitlerism.

Studied reflection upon his annual message has led both friend and foe in congress to the same conclusion. They are moved to it by such things as his sharp denunciation of isolationists .... his invitation to Americans to think through the prospect of a shabby and dangerous future world "if it is ruled by force in the hands of a few" and to decide what they want to do about it ...his warning that America can not live happily, prosperously and securely "inside a high wall of isolation" while "civilization and mankind are shattered"....these and other phrases hinted to the legislative statesmen that the President wants to do something more than he has done. What has been done naturally needs no such justification or future thought.

Paul Mallon

Only inklings as to what it may be were the definite limitations he specified... No "sending of American youth to fight on the soil of Europe" ...His "hope and expectation" that the United States will not become involved in "military" participation in the war....

Prospects

How this government might next try, within these specified limits, to assume increased responsibility against the agents of force (obviously Germany, Russia and Japan) has been a question of lofty analysis here for 24 hours. No one who will talk in the executive or congressional branches professes to know the secrets of Mr. Roosevelt's mind, but the prospects of action are gauged about as follows:

Moral Embargo

The moral embargo can be extended by executive action. The President has already blocked shipments of airplanes, airplane parts, molybdenum, aluminum and gasoline machinery to Germany through Russia, and to Japan by a simple appeal to Americans not to ship materials which could be used in bombing civilian populations. England and France can get these because they have not bombed civilians. He has embargoed rubber and other strategic raw materials similarly by warning Americans not to ship what we need for our own military stock piles. The list of these products could be extended indefinitely. Such action is considered probable.

Lending

The Johnson act limiting loans to the Allies who have not paid up for those of the last war could be repealed or amended, but no one thinks the President has the slightest intention of advocating this step. If he did, congress would not permit it.

Some method of facilitating credits, foreign exchange transfers and trade facilities to the Allies, within or around the Johnson act, might possibly be found. But as far as can be learned here, no consideration has been given this subject except as relates to South America, and minor cooperation on exchange with Britain and France.

Naval Help

If the President meant by "military participation" only war by an expeditionary force, he has left a loophole for naval action against "the agents of force." Official usage of the world "military" in congress restricts it to land armies. Both house and senate have "military" affairs committees to handle the army, and "naval" affairs committees to handle the navy.

Some legislators are attaching the greatest significance to this, as Britain and France do not want and probably will never need American troops in this new kind of war, although they could use any naval or further economic help they could get to bolster themselves in their sea and air blockade.

Other Methods

Numerous other indirect methods could be expanded, such as refusal to renew the expiring trade agreement with Japan, giving Finland more naval planes and gas masks, a threat of economic participation on the side of the Allies in an effort to force German capitulation.

Whether these steps and others are forecast in the President's words, the trend on high here is obvious and only Mr. Roosevelt can specifically define what it will bring.

One Interpretation

Note — Best interpretation is probably offered by an experienced Republican senator who thinks the President was only trying to say this country would not permit Germany or Russia to win, but had not yet figured out what he would do or how far the American people would go.

Thrusts at G.O.P.'s

It may have been too subtle for the public, but Mr. Roosevelt paid his respects to three prominent Republicans in his message.

His cut about "unrealistic persons claiming superior private information" was a slice at Senator Borah. More direct was the crack (at Ohio's Governor Bricker) claiming food and clothing had been furnished to needy "as far as the federal government is concerned." The third one was a "bumpsa' daisy" against Tom Dewey who has been howling about the defeatism of the New Deal, to wit: "Some in our midst have sought to instill a feeling of fear and defeatism in the minds of the American people."

The message and the budget may be taken as the keynote speech and the platform of the White House for the Democratic campaign in 1940, with or without Roosevelt at the head of the ticket.

Over - Supply of Gold?

Uncle Sam Has About 60 Per Cent of World's Supply.

ONE of the tough problems waiting for the United States to wrestle with it in 1940 is gold. William Jennings Bryan would have been in his glory if he could have lived to participate in the next presidential campaign.

In a nutshell, the problem is the plain fact the United States has too much gold—more than 60 percent of the world's supply—and keeps on getting more.

Most obvious cause of international gold movements is to balance a nation's foreign trade accounts. The United States sells more than it buys abroad. The difference is made up in gold. With war stifling United States tourist travel and shipping, the difference will grow larger, not smaller.

Unsettled conditions abroad before and after war started, furthermore, have encouraged liquidation of American investments in foreign countries. This, too, has meant transfer to the United States of gold, because there was no other way for governments to pay off. Furthermore, the United States is a haven for frightened investors aboard. They have been withdrawing capital from investments at home and placing it in the United States. This flight of capital is the most outstanding cause of the movement of gold to the United States in recent years.

CONSEQUENCES of this one-way movement of gold have not been serious, yet. But experts realize and admit candidly it is not a healthy condition. Gold reserves of the United States have more than doubled in five years. On the assumption that all the monetary gold in existence is worth about $28,000,000,000, the United States has close to $17,000,000,000, most of it in the treasury's famous "hole in he ground" at Fort Knox, Ky.

This includes only gold owned by the United States. Further large amounts have been sent here by foreign countries for safekeeping or in the expectation that ultimately it will be used here to balance international accounts. That is why experts are beginning to discuss frankly the possibility that too great a concentration of gold in one place might leave the United States holding the bag.

George Clarke Cox, discussing the problem in a recent issue of Barron's Financial Weekly, admits the possibility of "serious trouble, but takes a long view. "If capitalism survives," he declares, "gold will necessarily perform as it has done in the past. It is trusted as no other form of value has been trusted. There will probably be a drastic readjustment of monetary systems; and the United States, especially if not drawn into the war, may become the world's banker. Perhaps sanity may return and nations find it to their advantage to live in amity. Until someone shall discover something more satisfactory than gold, the essentials of our monetary economy will be maintained."

Only one thing, says Mr. Cox, an authority on the economic function of gold, could destroy its value as coverage for currency and settlement of international balances. "If the world should become one vast totalitarian state, then gold would not be used as money. Such a state can make its slaves take any kind of paper or token which it may decree."

THIS has happened already in some countries. Until outbreak of war at the beginning of September all European currencies except Germany's and Russia's, as well as those of most of the rest of the world, were on a gold standard. But war caused a sudden collapse of gold as a backing for currency, because it lacked flexibility. Gold ceased to be a standard of value and became a weapon of war. Germany, despising gold backing for currency because it can make its people accept money without gold backing, has seized all the gold it can get from the countries it has overpowered, because in foreign trade gold has sovereign value. Russia, which opposes use of gold as a capitalistic device, offers rewards to gold prospectors who can increase the supply.

Mr. Cox points out that if the United States happened to get all the gold in the world the result would be collapse of gold as a standard of value. Nations cannot deal in something they can't obtain. But the United States doesn't want to get all the gold and will do everything in its power to prevent that catastrophe.

Today and Tomorrow

January and February Seen as Critical Period for New Session of Congress.

By WALTER LIPPMANN

IT MAY be said, I think, that this congress will be successful if the party leaders and the party managers are able to reach a working political agreement within the next 60 days. Almost surely the months of January and February will be the critical period, and what is done will have far-reaching consequences for a long time to come.

Walter Lippmann

For no one can prudently expect the existing lull in world affairs to continue beyond the month of March; when the lull comes to an end, whether in violent and decisive battles which alter the balance of power in Europe and in Asia or in revolutionary developments that inaugurate the reestablishment of peace, it is absolutely essential that our own house should be in order, that we should be strong and that we should be united and clear-headed.

No one can predict just what will happen in the spring. But any one can see that whatever it is that happens in the spring, now is the time to prepare the country to withstand the shock of events if there is violent warfare, or if there is the beginning of peace, to guard its interests and play its part. The country will be ready for neither eventuality if the next 60 days are not devoted to fashioning an efficient, well disciplined, responsible, and widely-trusted majority in both houses of congress. The particular questions which certainly have to be dealt with, and the unforeseeable questions which will arise later, will all be manageable enough if at the very beginning of the session the President and the congressional leaders organize a reliable and representative working majority. With that done, there will exist a solid center of action around which the people can rally, against which the hysterics, the fanatics, the intriguers and the eccentrics will beat in vain.

Different 6 Months Ago

Six months ago this might have seemed like a counsel of perfection. For then the country was still mired in the depression, there were sharp sectional and class animosities, the President had lost control of his party, congress was a mere assemblage of angry factions, and public opinion, deprived of coherent political leadership, was being victimized by the propaganda of native visionaries and of foreign conspirators. It is evident that during the autumn the sound sense and deeper public spirit of the American people have reasserted themselves, and that the internal situation, which was menacingly out of hand, is now well in hand. The panic is over. Those who tried to exploit it have been made to subside, and there will be no stampede.

The people, as a matter of fact, are more unanimous and less discontented than are many of the politicians who represent them. There are at this moment no great issues which deeply divide the nation. There are disputes, conflicts of interest, and misunderstandings about some measures, about the administration of some laws, about the emphasis of certain aspects of foreign policy. But as compared with other countries, or even with this country in the period from the collapse of the price structure in 1931 to the struggle over the Supreme Court in 1937, the controversies are artificially exaggerated. The agitation comes less from the people themselves than from the professional politicians; the controversies are magnified out of all proportion to their intrinsic importance by the collisions between politicians stubbornly acting on pride of opinion and politicians stooping to invent scares.

The experience of the past four months has shown that once the people have something more important to attend to than the clamor of politicians, the issues are deflated and the problems become manageable. This would not have happened if the problems of the United States were really so profound and so insoluble as many have let themselves think. The truth is that this country is unique in that it has no problems which cannot be solved readily enough by intelligence and good will; there is no other country which has at once inexhaustible resources, high technological and organizing competence in the population, a deep-rooted tradition of democratic government, a dependable habit of party discipline, and an invincible security. In the United States alone are all the essential elements of a good national existence within reach and within the control of the people.

Problem Not Difficult

Under these conditions, the ordinary problems of statesmanship would be comparatively easy if only the fact that they are so easy did not tend to make the politicians irresponsible and the people self-indulgent and rather soft and to often unaware of the facts of life.

The experience of the past four months has shown clearly how to fashion an instrument of party government which can be depended upon in the critical days that lie ahead. This is a Democratic administration with a Democratic majority in both houses of congress: the crux of the problem is to maintain and

Daily Bible Thought

IT MAY COME TO US—To him that is afflicted pity should be showed from his friend.—Job 6:14.

"He's getting warm, isn't he, mama?"

Our Old Man

He Thought There Should Be Experts on Marital Trouble Same as Sickness and So On.

By DAMON RUNYON

OUR old man said he thought in the interests of marital happiness we should have specialists trained to advise in times of domestic discord. He said he considered it very strange that one of our greatest national ailments was not scientifically studied and treated.

He said when a man or woman was ill they went to a physician who listened carefully to their statements, then made a careful examination and diagnosis. When the physician decided he knew what was wrong he began to eliminate the causes of disorder. It might be a long and tedious treatment, but no patient of ordinary intelligence disregarded instructions.

Damon Runyon

Our old man said similarly a person whose business affairs were mixed up called in a lawyer, or an accountant, or some other expert supposed to know how to get tangles straightened out. Like the physician, the expert made a study of the situation and advised what should be done.

OUR old man said the only sicknesses the average man or woman of intelligence tried to cure were those that afflicted their domestic relations. He said sometimes they went around the neighborhood looking for advice but persons who considered themselves smart were mighty chary of giving advice in such cases.

Our old man said he could go into the Arkansas Hall saloon back in our old home town of Pueblo any night and find a dozen men who would gladly tell you how to cure colds, rheumatism, corns, a balky horse, a thumb-sucking child, baldness, tree blight, snake bite and liver disorders and give you advice on almost any matter you could mention—until you brought out the subject of marital unhappiness.

Our old man said then that those who considered themselves smart would immediately dry up. He said that seemed to be an ailment about which secrecy should be maintained and which should be privately treated.

He said we ought to have colleges turning out men and women highly specialized in treating situations of marital unhappiness, the same as we have colleges producing doctors, lawyers, ministers, engineers, professors and other specialists. He said he was aware that some communities had courts that tried to do something along this line but he considered their efforts haphazard and amateurish.

SOMEBODY asked our old man why he did not set himself up as an adjuster of marital muddles, and he said he did not think he had the necessary training or temperament. He said he had tried his hand at it a few times in dilettante fashion but had not had much success. He said in fact one of his efforts got him in difficulty.

Our old man said that was the time a distraught wife told him that she was going to do great harm to a local siren trying to steal her husband's affections. Our old man recommended caution on two counts. He told the wife that in the first place her action would lead to public scandal and that in the second place the siren could lick her weight in tarantulas.

He said he pointed out to the wife that the husband was 35 years of age, was supposed to have ordinary common sense and was therefore bound to know what he was doing in letting his affections wander from his own fireside, so why blame the siren? The wife said, well, her husband was weak where women were concerned and the charmer must have led him on.

Our old man said if the husband was that weak how did it come that the wife had not been able to do some leading on her own account? She said she meant he was weak where other women were concerned. Our old man said, well, if the wife wanted to do bodily harm to anybody she better start out by working on her old man before tackling the siren. That might put her in shape for a real tough job.

OUR old man said he later learned that the wife took his advice and went home and gave the husband such a belting he was laid up for two days. The siren, hearing of the incident, left town in great alarm, but before departing heard of our old man's advice and nicked his forehead with a well-chucked brickbat.

Our old man said he did not mind this so much but that for months afterward he was always having to run his legs off keeping out of the way of the husband, who never did fully appreciate his advice to the distraught wife.

Anecdotes of Ohio

By GILBERT F. DODDS

Current German bund activity makes more pertinent this anecdote about a "German regiment" which was recruited from Virginia, solely of men of German extraction.

Led by a fighting-preacher, Rev. Peter Muhlenberg, pastor of the German Lutheran church at Woodstock, Va., the regiment was raised by him Dec. 1, 1775. Muhlenberg was made colonel of the regiment, which was to be immortalized in the poetry of Thomas Buchanan Read.

Describing the pulpit performance of Muhlenberg the Sunday morning the latter recruited the force, Read wrote:

"When suddenly his mantle wide
His hands impatient flung aside
And lo! He met their wondering eyes
Complete in all a warrior's disguise.

Outside the church, the trumpets called men to enlist; the drum and fife fired them "with fiercer life," while overhead the church bells rang out wildly, with "War! War! War!"

Eat and Grow Thin

You probably have been over-eating and may even be looking anxiously toward the scales in your bathroom. Victor H. Lindlahr has a message for you if you are. Lindlahr says you need not have gained weight if you ate copiously on Christmas, provided you ate the proper things. He goes on to say that starvation is not necessary for those who want to lose weight.

The Lindlahr idea seems to be that a diet can be chosen from necessary foods which will provide the body's needs, and at the same time use up enough energy in the process of absorption to prevent excess poundage.

Like a good many things of value, Lindlahr's reducing formula came into being accidentally—or rather was applied accidentally. His father had started a sanitarium in Chicago in which diet was studied and dietetic formulae were used in the treatment of many diseases particularly diabetes. It became evident after a while that although the "L. C." diet (meaning "low carbohydrates") served its primary function, it also cut down the weight of the subject astonishingly, when that weight was excessive.

One day a social registerite from Philadelphia arrived at the sanitarium weighing an eighth of a ton and demanding to lose a pound a day or a month. She lost little the first week, so Dr. Lindlahr imagined a high sugar content in her blood and put her on an L. C. diet. She lost 12 pounds the first week.

7 LOCKED IN STEAM CHAMBER BY THUGS

Six Thieves Put Men in 120-Degree Heat.

By The Associated Press

NEW YORK, Jan. 5 — Six armed men locked seven silk company employes in a room filled with live steam last night and made off with $15,000 in silk cloth only after the superintendent had risked his life to plead that the steam be turned off.

Several of the employes of the Supreme Skein Dying Co. of Brooklyn had dropped under the intense heat when the superintendent, Louis Wachter, burst from the chamber shouting:

"For God's sake let me turn off the steam or we'll all die. The temperature is 120 degrees in here now and getting hotter."

"Okay," one of the men grunted. "Turn off the steam—and get back in there quick."

Wachter did as he was told—under the muzzle of one of two sub-machine guns the six carried—while silk was being loaded in a truck at the building's rear.

As soon as the trapped men heard the truck leave, they fled from the steam-filled room to call police but the robbers had disappeared.

G. O. P. Senators Meet, Oppose Trade Act

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON, Jan. 5 — Senate Republicans, caucusing for the first time in the new congress, appeared today to be in general agreement on a program of active opposition to extending the reciprocal trade treaty act and a "watchful waiting" attitude on defense appropriations.

Senator McNary of Oregon, who called the minority party members together, said he thought the Republicans as a whole were opposed to enacting of new taxes, believing that savings in regular government expenditures could be combined with a careful pruning of the defense program to obviate the necessity of raising additional funds.

Urges Caution

"In my opinion," McNary told reporters before the meeting, "super-appropriations for national defense should await the result of experimentation in the wars now being waged throughout the world.

"I don't believe that the normal activities of government should be crippled to provide funds for an unnecessarily large national defense program, but I do believe that departmental expenditures should be substantially reduced."

Senator Austin of Vermont, the assistant minority leader, said he would support a move to raise taxes to meet a part of the defense costs, rather than to increase the public debt. He said, however, that he wanted to be sure that all the requested funds would be needed.

"What congress needs to know before it votes on this proposed new defense program," he declared, "is what has been done on the program that it already has approved.

"We want to be sure that we are not biting off more than we can chew in a construction sense. The tendency is always to waste when you appropriate more than you can spend."

Would Change Clause

When McNary and House Minority Leader Martin of Massachusetts recently agreed to pitch the Republican fight on the trade treaties on a demand for senate ratification of the individual agreements, both Austin and Senator Vandenberg, Republican of Michigan, said they thought that elimination of the "most favored nation" clause of the act was just as important.

(When the United States extends a tariff concession to one nation in an agreement, the same concession automatically becomes available to all other nations which do not discriminate against United States imports.)

Vandenberg charged that this had permitted the importation of many products of countries which gave the United States no concessions in return.

True "Isolation" Hard To Attain, MacKenzie Says

By DEWITT MACKENZIE

President Roosevelt's reference in his annual message to the hardy and hotly debated question of American "isolation" comes at a time when the European conflict threatens to expand and present an already burdened western hemisphere with fresh worries.

The fiction has grown in many minds that this topic is associated solely with whether we get into the European war or stay out. Naturally mention of the subject ordinarily is a challenge to combat, and for that reason a lot of folk are inclined to side-step it.

We Can't Hide

However, the issue is much broader than that. Great upheavals abroad in any category do affect the Americas, and create problems which can't be evaded by hiding behind the rain-barrel.

These problems aren't due to our intrusion in foreign fields, but to the intrusion of foreign matters in what we regard as our own preserves.

Mr. Roosevelt said that the overwhelming majority expect the United States to stay out of the war, but that there is a "vast difference between keeping out of war and pretending that this war is none of our business." He also referred to "those who wishfully insist, in innocence or ignorance or both, that the United States of America as a self-contained unit can live happily and prosperously, its future secure, inside a high wall of isolation while, outside, the rest of civilization and the commerce and culture of mankind are shattered."

The roots of almost all of us are deep in one or another of the foreign lands. Our ancestors were English or French or German or Scandinavian or Italian or what will you. Many American families are branches of families which still exist in the old world. Our customs, laws, institutions—our whole culture is closely identified with the foreign fields.

Trade Important

We have an important trade with the old world. Throughout the present administration Secretary of State Hull has made a drive to lower trade barriers in Europe and obtain trade pacts. Not much isolation in that.

The covering of isolation gets pretty thin when foreign navies conduct warlike operations within swimming distance of American shores.

One could make a list as long as his arm showing how close the Americas are to Europe in many ways. We live a considerable part of our lives abroad, in a manner of speaking. Because of the ties of blood or other associations our sympathies constantly are being enlisted in one direction or another. Whether we like it or not, we cannot escape it.

So, with the question of whether we are going to war out of the way—for it's decided that we are not—we still have the broad question of interlocking interests to deal with. Some things, like trade, come under the head of self-interest. Others are altruistic.

Beyond this we have to determine whether a moral issue is involved. Whether, apart from material things, we should try to make our moral influence felt for the good of the whole world.

Judging from public speeches and published articles, the opinion seems to be very general that if we do have a legitimate self-interest in foreign affairs, and if we do have certain moral responsibilities, we should get busy and make up our minds in advance what we are going to do under certain circumstances. That will help safeguard our neutrality.

Bricker Not Likely To Call Vote On Ohio's Two Congressional Vacancies

By The Associated Press

COLUMBUS, O., Jan. 5—Gov. Bricker's desire for economy has all but removed the probability of early special elections to fill two Ohio congressional vacancies.

Present indications are that he will follow state custom and call the special elections to coincide with the May primary and November election. His decision is expected next week.

Holding them on regular voting days would entail little additional expense, whereas a nominating primary and election on other dates would be costly.

The vacancies are in the twenty-second (Cleveland) district, caused by the death of Rep. Chester C. Bolton, Republican, and in the 17th district by the death of Rep. William A. Ashbrook, Johnstown Democrat.

Costs Are High

Official estimates of the cost for a separate primary and election in the Twenty-second district is $60,000 and $40,000 for the Seventeenth. Even a special nominating primary and election concurrent with the May primary would cost $30,000 and $20,000 for the respective districts.

State Rep. J. Harry McGregor of Coshocton county, Republican house leader who has announced his candidacy for the regular congressional term in the Seventeenth district, said he opposed special elections except on regular primary and election dates because of the cost involved.

McGregor also asserted that if the vacancies were filled by special elections, the present congress probably would be almost ended before new members could be chosen.

Col. Oliver H. Dockery of Newark also is expected to be a candidate for the regular congressional nomination. Frank Cave of Mansfield, former speaker of the house, and former Congressman Charles West of Granville, one-time under-secretary of the interior and confidant of President Roosevelt, have been mentioned as probable Democratic candidates.

State Sen. Don R. Thomas of Dayton, is understood to be considering a race for the Democratic congressional nomination in the Third district. Thomas takes the view that if he is going to continue in politics, he must go after the jobs with better salaries than the $2,000-a-year as state legislator.

Senator Thomas also is understood to be considering a common pleas court judgeship in Montgomery county in case he does not try for congress.

State Sen. Thomas Jones (R-Meigs) announced this week he would seek reelection for a fifth term. He also has served four terms in the house. His district will elect two state senators this year.

Finance Director Robert R. Bangham of Clinton county and State Sen. Fred L. Adams (R-Wood) are still considering seeking the Republican nomination for state auditor.

They are close personal friends, and if one is a candidate for auditor the other will not be. State Auditor Joseph T. Ferguson, a Democrat, will seek reelection.

Rep. C. R. Culp (R-Lucas), serving his first term in the house of representatives, is said to be seriously considering seeking the Republican congressional nomination in the Ninth district. Congressman John F. Hunter, Democrat, will seek reelection.

Two Democrats, E. Matthews Steele of Wilmington and William H. Kroeger of Akron, obtained nominating petitions for secretary of state today. Kroeger said he would be a candidate, while Steele declared he had no announcement to make.

New Victory for Finns Reported

By The Associated Press

COPENHAGEN, Jan. 5—Finnish forces today were reported to have won another smashing victory against Russian troops on the Salla front, 125 miles north of Lake Kianta where the Finns virtually destroyed the Red army's 163rd division last week.

The Russians were said to have been routed at Salla, just above the Arctic circle, and to be fleeing in great confusion across the frontier in the direction of Kandalaska.

Inasmuch as the vital Russian Murmansk—Leningrad railroad is only 40 miles from the frontier, the new victory, observers said, may mean the Finns will not only be able to cut but destroy this line of communication.

Persistent reports from the north of successful raids against the railroad led neutral military ources to believe Russia would be compelled to abandon her winter attempts to smash Finland in the north or cut her in two and concentrate attacks on the Karelian isthmus to regain prestige.

Marriage Meddlers

By ADELE GARRISON

Queen Guesses Madge's "One Way" of Solving Problems

I FELT a sudden heady triumph as Queen Olga's facial expression changed from stern judgment of Philip Veritzen to tenderness.

Fortunately, her willingness to believe the best of the romantic lover of her youth, again her suitor, had made her eager to accept the excuse I had hastily trumped up for him, and I saw that she was in a receptive mood for more excuses in his behalf.

But she did not wait for the "whitewashing" speech I was mentally preparing. Instead, she rushed into explanation of what she had just said.

"There is no royal family in Europe so proud and haughty as the one to which Philip's father and his uncle belonged," she said. "Their pride was almost a disease with them. When Philip's pride was crucified by the knowledge of the disgrace which shadowed his birth, it was not killed but mutilated and turned into strange channels. He could not bear the thought that any other disgrace should ever come to his name, and I can see how his very soul was tortured when he thought that his son had failed him. But Noel must have been cleared or his father never would have forgiven him."

Was Cleared of Charge

"He was," I said, eschewing all further comment, because I did not wish to interrupt the psychological analysis of Philip Veritzen's motives in which she was indulging.

"Then," she went on musingly, "with that nightmare over, he must have put his whole soul into an ambition for Noel to become an outstanding figure in the world. And, as I understand it, soon afterward Olina came to Long Island and he learned her identity."

She looked at me for my corroboration, but my nod of assent satisfied her, and she went on.

"I can see how the old wrongs —and perhaps a remembrance of something more tender—fused his determination to have Noel marry my daughter, and thus give to Philip's grandchildren the royal heritage which had been denied him. Poor warped soul, in this age when royal families and titles are being scattered like chaff, how foolish!"

Still Cherishes It?

"But a very real feeling and determination," I commented when she paused.

"Do you think he still cherishes it in spite of his son's marriage?" she asked, but quickly answered her own question.

"I can see that you do," she said, "but how do you reconcile that with your belief that he means to deprive Mary of her role in your play? I should think he would do everything in his power to make Marry a success, hoping that she would be so enthralled by her stage success that she would neglect and estrange her husband."

I tossed a mental bouquet at her shrewdness, but my reply reflected the weariness of my spirit, almost exhausted in the attempt to conjugate the moods and tenses of Philip Veritzen's vagaries.

Has Stopped Trying

"I can't reconcile it. Indeed, I have stopped trying to solve the problem. It's on the knees or in the lap—or whatever you say—of the gods, and no effort of mine can either solve it or avert whatever catastrophe is coming."

"Your mouth is too pretty for such Cassandra-like utterances," she said. "Surely there must be some way out. We are mature, experienced women, you and I. We certainly can devise some way to solve this problem of our young people."

"There is one way out," I said, "something which I believe would not only salve Philip Veritzen's pride, but put him in a mellow humor toward Noel, Mary and all the rest of the world."

She looked fixedly at me, and her cheeks suddenly flamed scarlet, for she was yet without the complete cosmetic make-up which defies flushes.

"I suppose you mean," she said, "my martying Phil."

YOUR HEALTH

By LOGAN CLENDENING, M. D.

Teeth

When YOU say good-bye to your own, your very own teeth, and take on a set of dentures both upper and lower, you are in for some experiences, physical and psychological and spiritual, none of which is at all pleasant.

The upper plate does not usually give so much trouble, but the lower plate is a fiend. Adjustments have to be made to allow for shrinkage of the gums, and the question arises whether the irregularity will hurt the contour of the face. Gritty feelings occur in the mouth and changes in taste seem to be noticed.

The problem arises whether the denture should be removed at night or whether removing it will allow drooping of the corners of the mouth and bring a change in the contour of the face.

The gums of both the upper and lower jaws do absorb and shrink for a period of several months after the teeth have been removed. It is sometimes advisable to put in a temporary denture until this shrinkage is over and the jaws have become stationary, at which time a satisfactory denture can be fitted which should never need to be changed.

Night Removal Advised

There is no serious effect from removing the dentures at night. It is advised by most dentists. A number of powders are on the market which help in holding the dentures in place. If sore spots occur, the dentures themselves should be treated.

Whether taste is changed by wearing dentures is very doubtful. Dr. Donald A. Laird, the psychologist, has made some experiments on this subject. He used grapefruit juice, which could be processed so that it ranged over five varieties of taste, from sweetness to tartness. He then tried these on a large number of people to see what particular taste they preferred. Taking then a group of people who had all their teeth and those who wore dentures, he found very little difference in the preferences of the two groups or in the acuity of taste perception.

Dentures will not alter your sense of taste appreciably, if at all, but you must remember that taste preferences change with the passing years, whether one wears dentures or not, and probably you are preferring less sweet foods.

In the experimental group tested for taste preferences, the one marked difference that was found was that the men with dentures were inclined to prefer the tart-flavored grapefruit juice rather than the sweet. This curve, however, is practically the same as the ordinary curve due to increasing age.

There is a gradual disappearance of taste buds throughout life. In early childhood there are taste buds on the inside of the cheeks and in the throat, in addition to the tongue. These disappear in adolescence, leaving only those on the tongue. In the later years there is quite a decline, both structurally and functionally, in the taste buds. Foods which a child does not enjoy become palatable in maturity. The preference for sweet tastes is almost invariably replaced by a preference for tart sensations.

Incidentally, it has been found that sex has a considerable influence upon taste preferences. Women, even under 18 years old, are more like the older group in that they have a preference for the tart and less for the sweet taster. This would appear to be contrary to ordinary observation, but it seems to be scientifically established.

One Is Beloved

BY LOUISE PLATT HAUCK

FRIDAY: Sue goes to Toledo city to take a plane, and returns from the newspaper's office that Pat knew of Bob's debts, and that Bob is not in love with Pat. Sue dashes home, again.

CHAPTER TWENTY-NINE

Change of Fortunes

She went to the telephone, called Bob's number. His personal secretary answered.

"Mr. Trenton's out just now, Mrs. Trenton. I don't know when he'll be back. No, he left no message but I got the impression he didn't intend to return at all today."

"You have no idea where he went? The Benton Club, perhaps? The Chamber of Commerce?"

"I wish I knew." Something hushed and sympathetic crept into the girl's voice. "Neither of those places, I'm afraid. It's—it's a terrible blow to him, Mrs. Trenton; but of course you don't need me to tell you that!"

She put her hand still on the instrument, bit her lip. Where should she call, whom should she call next?

Alone! The answer blew gratefully across her hot perplexity.

It was late afternoon before Bob returned to his home. Allen had telephoned his sister several times, reassuring messages for the most part. Bob was tied up in a conference at the bank, Bob would be free presently, Bob was perfectly all right; pretty low in his mind, poor fellow, and dog-tired, but taking the blow like a man.

Sue met him in the hall. Her small face was quite beautiful in its forgetfulness of self, in its sweet sympathy. He stared at her for a moment as though she were a stranger. Then:

"Sue!" he said brokenly. "Oh, Sue, you're going to stand by me! I knew of course you would, but I didn't realize all it would mean to me. Sue. . . ."

"There, Bob, there!" She drew him into the livingroom with a soothing hand on his arm. "Of course I'll stand by you. I'm your wife!"

Kitchen

"You need a man to do that, Sue," Pats said disapprovingly. "That is, if you're going to bother with it at all. Personally I don't see why you do!"

Sue, panting a little, ceased her attack on the clods of dirt in the tiny back yard. The area she intended to be a flower garden had been spaded but not raked. Now in the thin April sunshine, she was dressed in old riding clothes ad her shabbiest shoes, wrestling with the stubborn clay.

"It's fun," she informed her sister-in-law. "This used to be a charming old garden, Barbara's grandmother tells me. I'm going to try restoring it just as it was in the Academy's time."

Pats' disparaging glance traveled from the tiny brick building which was now the Trenton's home, to the larger one some fifty yards away.

"Who but you would think of living in an old kitchen!"

"Kitchen! It was the dining-room, I'd have you know! That's what gives us our lovely big room downstairs. But think of the poor girls having to trail clear over here in wet weather when mealtime came around! I wonder why, when they were building the academy, they didn't include dining-room and kitchen!"

The other girl shrugged. It seemed to her supremely unimportant. The Young Ladies' Academy had flourished more than half a century ago. Now the larger place was an apartment house, the smaller had been made modern to the extent of adding plumbing, lights and furnace. Nothing else had been changed.

"You were foolish not to take an apartment," she rebuked the gardener. "You could have had five nice rooms for the same rent as this shack."

Sue smiled but said nothing. Her tiny domain had charm and she knew it. The wide-boarded floors were of walnut, the big old room which, with the exception of the small kitchen constituted the entire first floor, was quaintly panelled.

"You haven't asked me what I came for." Pats suggested presently. She was smart in a green wool suit, with gloves, hat and shoes of the same creamy brown. She had dragged out a chair for herself, careful to see that it was placed on the sidewalk and not on the actual scene of Sue's labors.

"For the pleasure of seeing me, I hope!"

Pats did not smile. Allen's sister was no longer an asset to her save that her popularity in the town seemed undiminished. Mrs. Allen Davenport had to buy her own clothes now, could no longer dine at the beautiful Trenton place, nor rely on a Trenton car to drive her about.

"I came to tell you that your house is sold!"

Sue's smile vanished. How like Pats to wish to be the bearer of bad news! Not that it was bad news, in this case. The sale of the beautiful home north of town had been an occasion of rejoicing to both herself and Bob; but Pats could not know that.

"Aren't you sorry?" Pats demanded. "Heavens, Sue, you're the coolest thing! Think of that lovely place—all its furniture and everything! I should think you'd simply howl at the idea of letting it go. Forest says you needn't have given up the furniture, or your personal things—like your own car, and the pearls Bob gave you. You were an idiot to do it, I think!"

"I'm sure you do, Pats; but Bob and I saw the matter differently. Whew, this clay is stiff!" She dug into a pocket for her handkerchief and wiped her warm face. "As for the sale of the house, I knew about it last week; knew that there was a chance for it, anyway." Her tone dismissed the subject so emphatically that even Pats hesitated about commenting further. However, she had only tiny barbs which she proceeded to throw at Sue, hoping to penetrate that busy young person's calm serenity.

"Forest says they offered you a grand position in that new antique shop," she observed. "Why on earth didn't you take it? You could have kept a maid, then, and still have money of your own. It's far smarter to be a business woman these days, whether you need to or not, than it is to do your own housework."

Tragedy?

Sue's ironic gaze rested briefly on the expensive figure of her sister-in-law. This from Pats! When Allen's home was badly run by the servant who had finally succeeded the long suffering Maggie; when Pats' earlier training could have enabled her to take her own advice without difficulty! Sue remembered the last time she and Bob had dined with the Davenports, and Bob's disgusted comment on food and service when they reached home.

"Forest says—"

"Forest has a good deal to say, it seems to me, Pats! What we do, or don't do is really none of his business. There! I've got this pretty smooth, I think. Bob and I are going to put the seeds in tomorrow afternoon."

"His afternoon off, isn't it? Doesn't he feel terribly, working in a retail shoe store? I told Allen I wouldn't embarrass poor Bob by going in—"

"He isn't a clerk, you know; he's a buyer. I doubt if you'd see him. Go in by all means, if that is where you like to buy your shoes!" There was an edge to her voice. She had had enough of Pats for one morning.

"Well, anyway, I do think it's been a tragedy for you both! Giving up your membership in the Country club, losing everything on earth you possess, having people drop you from their lists—"

"Did you ever hear of Job's comforters, Pats? You're a swell imitation of one, anyway. I'm going into the house now. Coming?"

"I'-yes. For a little while, perhaps. I've got to meet some of the girls downtown for lunch but there's an hour yet." She glanced about the big room they had entered. "I'll say for you, Sue, you have done wonders here!"

The other nodded briefly. At last her share of her mother's furniture had come out of storage, and beautiful old furniture it was, too. The well-proportioned old room would have satisfied the most exacting taste, its owner now thought. Upstairs were two bedrooms and a bath, reached by an almost spiral staircase curving from a narrow hall. This was her entire domain, and she had come to love it already.

She was not unhappy, she realized suddenly. She was, in fact, more nearly content than she had been in years. Perhaps it was because all decisions had been made, the uncertainty ended, the parting with Eric finally effected.

There had been a terrific struggle between them. Looking back, it seemed to Sue incredible that so momentous a situation could have existed for days and none of those near her have realized it.

She had sent Eric a letter on the day of Bob's catastrophe. She had worded it cautiously but so explicitly that she felt he could not fail to understand. His sole reply had been "Come at once."

Telegrams flew back and forth between them for two days; then he called her, flinging discretion to the winds. Sue had taken the call in the living room at the actual moment Bob and his lawyer were discussing the settlement of his affairs in the library adjoining. Interrupting her eager flow of words, Eric said:

"The failure is beside the point. It has nothing to do with us. For the last time, Sue, will you come?"

"Eric, you must see that I can't. Not now, at least. When things are better, when Bob gets this mess straightened out—"

"Do you love me, Sue?"

"Oh, Eric, yes!"

"Then put all this nonsense aside and come. Or I'll come to you, if you'd rather. I'll take you away. Do you hear me, dearest?"

ANNIVERSARY TO BE MARKED

Junior Chamber of Commerce Lays Plans for Observance Jan. 16 to 21.

Plans for observing the twelfth anniversary of the founding of the Marion Junior Chamber of Commerce Jan. 16 to 21 were discussed last night at a meeting of the chamber. During the same week the national Junior Chamber of Commerce will observe its twenty-first anniversary.

Arrangements were made for the Junior Chamber's annual "bosees" dinner which will be held jointly with the Marion Chamber of Commerce at Hotel Harding Jan. 22. A feature of the meeting will be the presentation of a plaque and a key to two Marion men for civic leadership during 1939. A committee composed of Howard Ryan, Donald Quaintance, Walter Maxwell, Ellis Wilson and William Bradley was appointed to take charge of the ticket sale for the dinner.

Discuss Traffic Drive

Jay Cee members discussed briefly the campaign being sponsored by a committee of the Marion Chamber of Commerce to obtain 24-hour-a-day protection at the city's railroad crossings. Plans were made to send representatives of the Junior Chamber to a meeting of city council next Monday night at which the crossing problem is to be discussed.

A discussion of the annual "Golden Gloves" boxing tournament to be held later in the winter was given by Jimmie Williams. In the past the tournaments have been sponsored jointly by the Junior Chamber and the Marion Y. M. C. A.

Seek Skating Spots

A recommendation that the Junior Chamber attempt to locate additional places for ice skating in the city was discussed at length, several members expressing the opinion that arrangements might be made to flood sections of the city's parks for skating. The suggestion was referred to a committee composed of Charles Caprino, chairman, Walter Maxwell, Ellis Wilson and James Baker for further study.

Edwin King, chairman of the Junior Chamber's convention committee, announced tentative plans for the national Jay Cee convention in Washington, D. C., next summer and for the state convention at Toledo in the spring. Several local members are planning to attend the state meeting.

perfect the reunion of the Democratic party. That was well begun in the special session during the autumn. The method of reunion has been demonstrated, and it is altogether practicable because the President has the means. The Democratic party can reunite, and thus perform the indispensable function of providing an effective governing majority in so far as the President shifts from the New Deal left wing of his party to the liberal center.

That is all that is required. In shifting the center of gravity, it is not necessary for him to abandon his reforms; as a matter of fact not even the Republicans are asking him to do that. In truth no one who realizes the facts will wish to see any of the great social services abandoned or crippled. Nor is it necessary for him to exclude or excommunicate his lieutenants. What is necessary is that he should include in the controlling leadership of the party the regular Democrats, the party men who are represented by seasoned politicians like Mr. Garner, Mr. Rayburn, Mr. Byrnes, and Mr. Farley. If Mr. Roosevelt will do that, and doing it, will make his decisions on the collective judgment of his party, there should be no question whatever about obtaining effective support in congress during the remainder of his administration. And, one might add that there should be very little question about a smooth transition to his Democratic successor.

FLORA FINCH, MOVIE STAR OF PAST, DIES

Famed Comedienne of Old Days Dies in West.

By The Associated Press

HOLLYWOOD, Jan. 5 — Flora Finch, a famous film comedienne of the nickelodeon days, is dead after years of obscurity.

An accidental arm-scratch led to a streptococcus infection which sent her last Saturday to a hospital. She died there late yesterday of blood poisoning and bronchial pneumonia.

Death claimed her a full quarter century after taking the round John Bunny, her starring partner in many an uproarious comedy in the magic-lantern period of motion pictures.

With the Finch and Bunny comedy team disrupted by his death in 1915, Miss Finch's popularity declined and there were years of slim earnings.

But for the last decade or more she was back on a regular salary, playing bit and extra roles at Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer studios.

After Bunny's death, Miss Finch tried the stage for several years. Her first picture here was with Marion Davies in "Quality Street" in 1927. She had a bit role in "The Shop Around the Corner," previewed only this week.

Other pictures in which she appeared included "The Cat and the Canary," "Captain Salvation," "Quality Street," "Rose of the Golden West," "The Faker" and "The Scarlet Letter."

Marion Heads Into Leap Year and Wonders Why Extra Day Is Added To the Calendar

Marion is on its way into "leap year, 1940!"

Men and women, boys and girls of Marion and vicinity will celebrate birthday anniversaries for the first time since 1936 and here and there a "Mr. and Mrs." will mark another wedding anniversary that's been four years on the way.

There's the fate of girls who were born a year to face the flipper. Who did the proposing? You guessed it—because leap year for ages has been the time when women propose.

Leap year brings to mind the 24 days that never existed in the Catholic nations of the world and the 24 days that never existed in the Protestant nations of the world.

This year scores of Ohio and national concerns will do their bookkeeping on the basis of a 13-month calendar and the world-wide movement to change the present calendar system will be given its most serious consideration.

Origin Is Vague

Just where the idea of women proposing originated hasn't been established, but there is a record that in 1288 a law was enacted in Scotland providing that a woman might propose during leap year and that the man either must accept or pay a sum of money based upon the amount of his material wealth, unless he could prove himself already betrothed.

A similar law was passed in France a few years later and in the 15th century the custom was legalized in Genoa and Florence, Italy.

Further than that not much is recorded about Leap Year proposals. There is no legal basis for the custom these days.

Statisticians have figured that Feb. 29 comes once every 1,461 days.

Here's a brief analysis of the odd year that has so many people puzzled:

The solar year is the period of time in which the earth performs a revolution in its orbit about the sun. To be exact, a year consists of 365 days, 5 hours, 48 minutes and 46 seconds of mean solar time.

No Part Days

Fractions of days don't exist by themselves. Either you have a full day or you don't. So, with approximately 365 1-4 days in a year, the quarter days just accumulate until they total a full day. The full day then is added to the calendar. Thus every fourth year is leap year.

Why not forget about the extra day? Then within a few generations citizens of the world would be faced with the problem that threatened the Roman empire of Ceasar—the falling of snow in the summer and the budding of flowers in the winter. That would never do, according to the arguments of people who consider themselves sensible.

Human beings like order because it simplifies matters. You know just when the pay check and the income tax are due, when to get the winter coal, when to sow the wheat, when to hold the religious fete.

Imagine the trouble Ceasar had when he first was confronted with the calendar problem. So serious was the matter that in trying to effect a remedy the emperor "robbed" future history of 21 days.

When Ceasar became emperor the Romans were using the lunar calendar, which contained 354 days. With 11 days shortage in a year, summer would soon turn into winter as was pointed out to Julius. So he caused the adoption of the solar calendar.

His calculations and those of his astronomers, however, missed the correct time that elapses during a year by 11 minutes and 12 seconds, or three days every 400 years.

Equinox Off Schedule

The error was pointed out to Pope Gregory XIII, who was told that the vernal equinox would fall that year on March 11 instead of March 21, or 10 days ahead of schedule.

Corrections in time were provided for, and to allow for the 10 day period in which the equinox had become misplaced, the Pope decreed that the day following Oct. 4, 1582 should be Oct. 15, 1582.

All Catholic nations of the world adopted the Gregorian calendar, so all of them omitted the 10 days. In their history books, those 10 days never were, no battles were fought, no babies were born, no history was made. The days just didn't exist.

In order to keep the vernal equinox at March 21 every year, the Pope and his advisers decided to omit three leap year days every 400 years, with the omissions to take place in those centurial years the numbers of which were not divisible by 400.

Protestant countries did not approve the Gregorian calendar until 1752, when matters had become exceedingly complicated because of differences in dates. Jan. 25 in Italy was Jan. 15 in England. Religious festivals for a given occasion were being celebrated on different days in different parts of the world.

Days Without History

So the English parliament adopted the Gregorian calendar. Now, however, 11 days instead of 10 had to be erased from the year. By law, Sept. 3 to Sept. 13 inclusive, in 1752 were conveniently omitted. Thus England, the remainder of the empire and the nations which followed suit have no history for those days.

Every year the number of which is divisible by four is a leap year, except the last in each century, which is a leap year only when the number of the century is divisible by four. (How many girls thought they were correct in proposing in 1900?)

This matter of divisibility is what bothers most business concerns today. They don't like split weeks for payrolls. Business statistics can't be compared accurately from month to month because the months vary in length. Thus scores of Ohio concerns keep books on a 13 month year basis, with 28 days a month.

The variance in Easter dates is a problem to the church as well as to business.

The proposed calendar calls for a "Year Day" between Dec. 28 and Jan. 1—and a "Leap Year Day" every fourth year, inserted between June 28 and Sol 1 (Sol or "Sun" would be the name of the new month.)

Erie Group Wins Recognition

Beatty, Frank Townsend, Charles Griffith, William Hughes, Dwight Phillians, Otis Collins, John F. Koenig, Harold Rhoads, Henry Pollock, Lynn Kellogg, Paul Hanning and James Shuster.

23 Boy Scouts from Four Counties To Share in Awards at Bucyrus Sunday

Twenty-three Boy Scouts from the four counties in the Harding Area council will receive rank advancements and merit badge awards at the council's annual court of honor in Bucyrus Sunday afternoon.

The ceremony will be held at the Bucyrus High school auditorium starting at 2:30 p. m.

One scout, James Gebhardt, 16, son of Mr. and Mrs. C. E. Gebhardt of Bucyrus, will be advanced to Eagle rank, the highest rank offered in scouting. Two Eagle scouts from Marion will receive palm awards for completing work beyond the rank of Eagle, scout officials announced today. Harold Fralich, 16, son of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Fralich of 387 Blaine avenue, will receive a gold palm award for earning 10 merit badges in addition to 21 required for Eagle rank while Carl Meddles, 18, son of Mr. and Mrs. P. E. Meddles of 896 South Prospect street, will receive a bronze palm award for five additional merit badges.

Pastor to Speak

The principal address will be given by Rev. John David Mumford, pastor of St. Paul's Lutheran church in Bucyrus, who will speak on the relationships between scouting and community life.

The court of honor will open with a color ceremony in charge of members of the Order of Arrow, national honorary camping society, and invocation by Rev. R. Frank Mitchell, pastor of the Bucyrus Presbyterian church.

An address of welcome will be given by Common Pleas Judge Clarence U. Ahl, to be followed by an investiture ceremony by members of Troop 5 of Marion in charge of Scoutmaster C. H. Howard. The rank advancements and merit badge awards then will be made, followed by Rev. Mumford's talk. The program will close with another color ceremony by members of the Order of the Arrow and benediction by Rev. Mitchell.

Members of Court

The court of honor making the awards will consist of: Common Pleas Judge Russell H. Kear of Upper Sandusky, advancement chairman for Wyandot district; J. E. Frew of Marion, area advancement chairman; W. G. Beebe of Bucyrus, assistant commissioner of the Crawford district; Rowland R. Peters of Bucyrus, member of the area executive board; Dr. F. R. Mann of Marion, president of the Harding Area council; Wilbur H. Symes of Marion, former council president; A. H. Exton of Marion, chairman of the area board of review, and Judge Ahl.

Carey Invasion of Irish Court, Five County Tilts Top Tonight's Card

Saints To Seek Seventh Victory in Shovel Clash with Old Rival

MARION ST. MARY'S home stand against Carey and five county league programs round out tonight's scholastic court offering in this locality.

The Saints, seeking their seventh victory, meet a venerable rival when Coach Carl Bloee's Wyandot county warriors unpack their togs at the Marion Steam Shovel gymnasium.

During the grid season just past the Irish uncorked a sensational game to whip an unbeaten Carey eleven, which up to that point boasted an unsullied goal line. The Carey cagers mean to even the score tonight, but they'll need to ride through from the role of underdog to do it.

Starts at 7.

The show will begin at 7 o'clock with the clash of reserve teams and the main attraction will start an hour later. The locals, with no injured members to mar their chances, may be able to utilize the encounter with Carey as a warm-up fray for the stiffer competition that's in the offing.

They play three away games on successive Friday nights and as many at home on each Saturday night, giving them a row of six tough foes to mow down during the remainder of January. After renewing League of Six Nations hostilities at Tiffin Calvert a week hence, the Saints return home to entertain Morral, the following night.

County Games On Tap.

Barring the possibility of upsets the outcome of games on tonight's county league calendar are likely to have little bearing on the title race. Teams in the county appear to be the weakest in years, since Claridon and Pleasant, the only unbeaten combines have absorbed several lacings at the hands of non-league foes.

Claridon tonight has a welcome guest in Martel, which still is searching for the initial win. Pleasant entertains Kirkpatrick, winner in but one of five contests. Similarly in the girls' division, unbeaten Kirkpatrick collides with Pleasant, victor in one of four games, while Claridon, undefeated but tied, should have little trouble keeping Martel lassies out of the win column.

Other county games pair Caledonia at Waldo, Agosta at Green Camp and Meeker at Morral. The LaRue at Prospect contest has been postponed. Coach Paul Keller of Prospect, who is recuperating from a recent operation, reported today that Prospect will entertain Martel, Jan. 8, in a game previously postponed.

How They Compare.

The county's leading offensive and defensive clubs and the top individual scorers follow:

Offensive record—Pleasant and Claridon, 40.6; Green Camp, 28.3; LaRue, 28; Caledonia, 25 and Prospect, 24.3.

Defensive record—Prospect, 15; Caledonia, 19; Claridon, 19.2; Pleasant, 21.6; Waldo, 23.4 and Morral 26.

Individual scoring — Sims of Claridon, 67; Porter of Agosta, 66; N. Weston of Green Camp, 61; Cowgill of Pleasant, 54; Branch of Morral, 51; Hart of Kirkpatrick, 49; Messenger of Morral, 48.

Willard Says Conn Is Top White Hope

SOMERSET, Pa., Jan. 5—Billy Conn, the light heavyweight champion from Pittsburgh, is Jess Willard's selection as the leading "white hope" to dethrone Joe Louis.

The giant Willard, "white hope" who ended the reign of utilist Jack Johnson, said the only "if" was that Conn must get more weight. "I think he will get that soon," Johnson declared.

Four Changes in Grid Rules Approved for 1940

New Short Pass Law Gets Okay at Session.

By The Associated Press

PALM SPRINGS, Calif., Jan. 5—College football fans may mark down four changes in the rule book for 1940, including one designed to speed up play and another to encourage the use of short forward passes.

The major change, announced by the rules committee of the National Collegiate Athletic association at the conclusion of its meeting at the Desert Inn here yesterday, involves the short forward toss.

The new rule says that when a forward pass touches an ineligible player on or behind the line of scrimmage, the penalty will be merely the loss of the down.

If the passer is trapped, however, and throws the ball to save yardage and it touches an ineligible man who is on or behind the line, the penalty will be the same as for intentionally grounding a pass; namely, 15 yards and loss of the down.

The same penalty still exists if the pass touches an ineligible player beyond the scrimmage line.

The penalty for roughing a passer will, in the future, be enforced from the spot of the previous down. Heretofore, in the case of a completed or intercepted pass, the penalty was enforced from the point of the foul, which often made it necessary for the offended team to refuse the penalty.

In order to speed up the game, the committee reduced the time allowed in putting the ball into play from 30 seconds to 25 seconds.

The fourth new rule requires that cleats be three-eighth of an inch at the top, or point, instead of one-half inch, and that the top be parallel with the base.

Two rule clarifications were made. In the case of a free ball kicked, or kicked at, the responsibility for determining if the kick was intentional or not rests with the officials. It was also made clear "that on kicks from behind the scrimmage line protection is given the kicker only when it is reasonably obvious that he is going to kick. This applies especially to quick kicks made from close to the line of scrimmage."

HARDING SET FOR ASHLAND JOURNEY

All N. C. O. Teams To Have League Games Tonight.

Marion Harding's basketball team is scheduled for a road trip to Ashland tonight in the most important encounter on deck as North Central Ohio conference teams renew hostilities after a brief rest during the holiday season.

Mt. Vernon, unbeaten in the circuit and tied for first place with Marion, invades neighboring Crawford county to take on a Bucyrus team, which has won only one or six starts. Galion and Shelby, both previously beaten in the loop, meet on the latter's court.

Coach Dewey N. Bohyer will take more than a score of dribblers on tonight's 53-mile jaunt. The club will travel in private automobiles. The Marion-Ashland preliminary will bring together the only NCO junior varsity clubs still unbeaten.

INDIANA RATED AS TOPS IN BIG TEN

By The Associated Press

CHICAGO, Jan. 5—Doug Mills, University of Illinois basketball coach, has called the outcome of the Big Ten's No. 1 title opener tomorrow at Bloomington, Ind.

It is "Indiana over Illinois by 15 points."

"I know Indiana's speed and I know ours," Mills declared, "and on their own floor, if they're going right, they should beat us by 15 points. They're easily the class of the conference."

In fact, Mills looks for the Hoosiers, runners up to first place Ohio State last year, to lose but one conference game—the Purdue game at LaFayette.

The game highlights tomorrow's Big Ten inaugurals in which Purdue appears at Northwestern, Ohio State at Michigan, Minnesota at Iowa and Wisconsin at Chicago.

Buckeye Sports Dope

By FRITZ HOWELL
Associated Press Sports Writer

COLUMBUS, O., Jan. 5—Ohio's high school athletic board meets Saturday with Commissioner H. R. Townsend...and there's a chance that members will outlaw all football bowl, all-star and charity games starting next season. Commissioner Townsend said the board might force each school to file its complete schedule by Oct. 1, and then stick to it.

Other business items include setting all tournament dates for 1941; approving Lancaster's removal from the Central to the Southeastern district; counting votes for Northwestern district board members; ordering watch fobs for winners of district events; inserting a rule to deal with coaches taking their basketball teams off the floor in protest before the game is completed; and discussion of the regulation banning girls' basketball starting next September.

Although the number of girls' teams has dwindled from 800 to 300 in the last 15 years, Commissioner Townsend said protests were plentiful against barring the game altogether.

Minor League Czar Reviews Outlook for Coming Season

(This is the third of a series written for The Associated Press by the nation's sports leaders, in which they review outstanding events and trends of 1939 and indicate likely developments in 1940).

• • •

By WILLIAM G. BRAMHAM
President, National Association of Professional Baseball Leagues.

By The Associated Press

DURHAM, N. C., Jan. 5 — There is a popular saying that the first 100 years is the hardest. Baseball has just completed its first century, after a splendid centennial observance during the past year. We in the minor leagues are looking toward 1940 with a confidence born of the success of the past.

The season of 1939 was, perhaps, the best the minor leagues have enjoyed in their long history. Exclusive of the play-offs and post-season series which were staged, our 41 leagues drew a total of 18,500,000 paid admissions, a remarkable increase of 3,000,000 over the previous season.

One can not scan these figures without feeling an appreciation for the loyalty of the baseball public and a realization that the game must offer something of wide appeal.

Already, we have added one new league to the National association roster for 1940, and several more are in the process of organization. The spread of the game into Canada has been most gratifying, and while nations across the sea are in the midst of strife, it is a source of much satisfaction to know that our neighboring government in Canada looks to baseball as one of the effective mediums to relieve the war-worried minds of its people.

In the United States, too, we look upon baseball as a common ground where all men may gather to enjoy clean sportsmanship and hard competition which leave pleasant memories, rather than rows of white crosses on the plots adjacent to battlefields.

At our centennial convention in Cincinnati we accomplished much, and the desire to cooperate and to learn, as expressed by our club officials, was more pronounced than it ever has been.

At Least 2 More Red Hurlers to Go

By The Associated Press

CINCINNATI, Jan. 5—At least two more Red pitchers are to go, Cincinnati baseball club officials indicated after deals yesterday which disposed of Lefty Lee Grissom to the world champion New York Yankees and Johnny Niggeling to the St. Louis Browns.

They may take spring practice which starts Feb. 26 in Florida to determine which of the 12 remaining members of the National league champions' hurling staff are to be caught in the shakeup.

After announcement of the deals which included trading Grissom for right hander Joe Beggs of the Yanks' Newark farm, Manager Bill McKechnie of the Reds, wasn't so helpful concerning future trading plans.

"I'll make any deal which will help the team," the Deacon repeated.

The next Red pitchers to be up for sale or trade would not be Bucky Walters and Paul Derringer, who vallantly faced the Bronx Bombers in the last World Series, of that the Rhinelanders were sure.

While New York smiled over getting Grissom, and possibly seeing the Bronx Bombers led around the trenches of an American league ban which prevents them from trading in their own league, McKechnie also expressed satisfaction with the deal.

"I saw Beggs pitch in Newark in 1938 and I like his curve ball," the Deacon declared. "I don't care what his record is. I like his style and stuff."

The guy named Joe in two tries in the big time hadn't been able to win consistently. Grissom worked in 33 games last season, had a record of nine wins and seven losses, and is a valuable player, some of the bleacher experts said.

The next Red pitcher to be released would not be rookie Gene Thompson. Lloyd (Whitey) Moore, Johnny Vander Meer, James Turner or Milburn Shoffner, according to choice of speculators.

It would not be the lately acquired Mr. Beggs and that left Charles Barrett, Johnny Hutchings, John Cannon and Elmer Riddle who might go up or down the river in sales or trades.

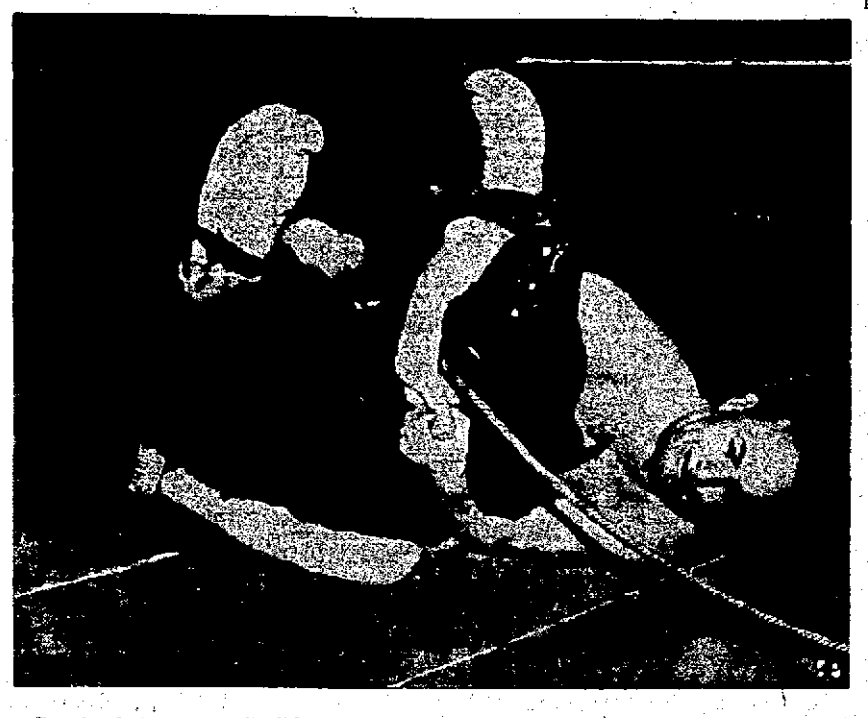
ARMSTRONG WINS, WILL FIGHT AGAIN

By The Associated Press

ST. LOUIS, Jan. 5—Welterweight champion Henry Armstrong—who schedules title defenses in series and keeps all dates—will battle Pedro Montanez in New York Jan. 24, flaunting the scalp of the man who once inspired him to do big things with his fists.

The St. Louis Negro felled his one-time "hero"—Joe Ghnouly—three times in the first of a scheduled 15-round championship match last night and dropped the faltering challenger for keeps in 34 seconds of the fifth.

Bear on Mat Here Becomes Big Town Favorite



Bear has become a favorite dish on the menu of metropolitan mat cards. Above is "Ginger," 350-pound Canadian black bear, which was brought here for several visits a month or so ago. Ginger is shown wrestling Roy Welsh, owner, in a Dallas, Tex. ring. The bear wrestles with padded paws and muzzled nose as standard ring equipment.

OHIO U. WINS AGAIN; BAUMHOLTZ GETS 26

Frankie Paces Cats Over Baltimore, 67 to 44.

By The Associated Press

It's going to be hard to keep Frank Baumholtz, Ohio university forward, off the All-Ohio teams at the end of the basketball season.

The sandy-haired upper-court star flipped in 26 points last night to spark the undefeated Bobcats to their sixth triumph—a 67 to 44 decision over Baltimore university.

Ohio led at the half, 24 to 19, and turned the game into a rout with brilliant field-goal shooting and accuracy from the foul line. The Bobcats made good on 19 of their 27 free throws.

In other games involving Ohio teams Bowling Green stopped Michigan Normal, 39 to 28; Ohio Wesleyan downed Western State Teachers of Michigan, 66 to 56; Calvin of Michigan turned back De Sales, 52 to 43; and Ball State Teachers of Indiana tripped Akron, 50 to 37.

DISPUTE FLARES UP AMONG RACE MEN

By The Associated Press

COLUMBUS, O., Jan. 5—Ohio harness horse racers in the year-old United States Trotting association get a chance Wednesday to find if there's any heat in that discrimination - labelled potato tossed by the American Trotting association of Chicago.

The American's secretary, C. H. Perry, charged in advance of the USTA's district meeting here next week that the new group governing 90 per cent of the nation's trotting-pacing tracks was seeking to kill the Chicago organization through "isolation."

Perry termed illegal a ban on horses under the American banner from all except free-for-all events of USTA meets, including the Hambletonian classic. He also accused the USTA of assuming dictatorial authority harmful financially to owners of small stables.

JOCK TO TURN PRO?

By The Associated Press

PITTSBURGH, Jan. 5 — Art Rooney, owner of the Pittsburgh professional football Pirates, said today he had made Jock Sutherland a proposition of "somewhat less than $15,000 a year" and was confident the former Pitt mentor would sign to coach the Bucs next season. Sutherland was reported unofficially to have declined the $7,000 coaching job at West Virginia university.

THREE GAMES BILLED FOR ARMORY SUNDAY

Upper Sandusky To Meet Guardsmen; Leaders Idle.

With the pace-setting Ralph's Snappy Service team scheduled to rest, Sunday's basketball sessions on the Armory court will find other members of the Armory league battling to better their spots in the standing.

Wyandot Vaults of Upper Sandusky, holders of runner-up berth, take on Company D's team in the 1:30 opener. The Vaults have bowed only to Ralph's and should find the going easy against this week's foe, since the Soldier's gained only one win in four tries.

Kirkpatrick, with a two won, one lost record, collides with the Marion K. of C. outfit, which has broken even in four starts. The final game matches Earl's Dairy, beaten twice, and Midway Restaurant, victorious once in three games.

Six-Man Battle Royal on Tap for First Mat Program of Year

Wrestling will make its 1940 debut before Marion fans next Monday night, resuming weekly stands at the Steam Shovel gymnasium after a two-week lay-off over the holiday season.

A six-man battle royal, which promises plenty of lively entertainment, will uncork the first card of the new year. Contestants will be Danny Savich of Utah, Martino Angelo of Buffalo, Paul Orth of Canton, Andy Tremaine of Phoenix, Ariz., George Wagner of Houston, Tex., and a newcomer to the Marion arena, The Mask.

All of the five husky light heavyweight who bear conventional monickers are old acquaintances among the fraternity of regular spectators. Savich, Orth and Angelo comprise a trio of excellent nominations for the meanest man title.

All Broadminded

Any of the three has been known to stoop to virtually anything to conquer. Rough punching, slugging, hair pulling and a bit of occasional eye-gouging is not above the ring standard of the lot of them. They have been consistent winners in local duels, dropping most the few bouts they have lost when paired against grapplers of the same ilk.

Andy Tremaine and George Wagner usually dish out the ultimate in straight, clean grappling. Their recent 90-minute scrap that went the full time limit without a single fall being scored was the epitome of clever mat work. It was a true sample of the kind of ring tactics they've always relied on to go places.

As for The Mask, little is known. Promoters have been assured that he is not any of the bevy of former hooded ringsters who have appeared here from time to time. Advance reports indicate that he will fight strictly within the rules of the game and is not one of the usual harem-scarem hooded men, that Marion has seen so often.

He's coming in from the southwest, where he was highly successful in whipping most of the rougher boys. He succeeded in that task by sticking to conventional holds, rather than overpowering them with devasting barrages of fisticuffs and general ring mayhem.

The gang fight will open the ring show at 8:30. The battlers will be paired, on the basis of how they finish, in succeeding semi-windup and final matches. The finalists will collide in a two-hour main attraction, with the pair of semi-finalists dueling in a 45-minute tilt. In both succeeding scraps, two falls will be necessary to win.

Coca Cola Squad Enters Tie for Industrial Lead; Cheney Signs Take First in City Loop.

Coca Cola keglers stepped into a tie for leadership of the Industrial league, winning three straight over the CCC Hi-Way Freight, while the pace-setting Paulson's Grill quintet dropped two of three starts to the Peerless Cleaners. S. Tennant's 246 round, coupled with 158 and 174 gave him a 578 series for individual honors and helped the Marion Paint Co. to high totals of 907 and 2,622.

Cheney & Son Signs took over leadership in the City league by copping two out of three games against their toughest rivals, Spot Restaurant, in last night's matches. Dean's 233, H. Mounts' 613, Wright Transfer's 1,027 and City Ice & Fuel's 2,886 were the honor scores.

Boston Wool

By The Associated Press

BOSTON, Jan. 5—Domestic wools received some inquiry on the Boston market today, but the volume of sales was very moderate. Quotations were steady, but largely nominal, on fine territory and 12-months Texas wools. Prices were steady on a moderate turnover in spot South African Merino wool. A little business was transacted in spot country-packed, mixed three-eighths and quarter-blood bright fleece wools at mostly 43 to 44 cents in the grease. Similar lots offered from country points were quoted 43 to 45 cents in the grease delivered to users.

'ROMEO AND JULIET' MARRIED AT LAST

By The Associated Press

NORTH CONWAY, N. H., Jan. 5—Rev. Raymond Phelps of the North Conway Congregational church said today he had married Eileen Herrick and George Lowther, New York's Romeo and Juliet, shortly after their arrival here by plane.

The minister said he performed the ceremony at his home at 11:30 a. m. and that the young couple then went to the nearby Eastern Slopes Inn, popular skiing hostelry, for a wedding breakfast. The best man was Hans Schneider, famous skiing instructor. Mr. Phelps said, adding he did not know the bridesmaid who attended Miss Herrick.

STAR'S FATHER HURT

NEW ORLEANS, La., Jan. 5—Low visibility was blamed today for a plane crash near here last night in which State Senator Arthur F. Foran, 58, of Flemington, N. J., wealthy industrialist and father of Dick Foran, movie actor, and two others were hurt.

WHEAT CONTINUES TO DECLINE AT CHICAGO

By The Associated Press.

CHICAGO, Jan. 5 — Wheat prices continued to sag today losing about a cent a bushel in sympathy with weakness of the Winnipeg market, which is having increased influence on domestic prices because of fear of importation of cheap Canadian grain into this country.

The cold wave overspreading much of the grain belt inspired some buying that produced frequent rallies but the forecast indicated slowly rising temperatures and some precipitation may be expected.

Wheat closed ¾-1¼ cents lower than yesterday, May $1.04-1.03⅞, July 1.01⅞-¾; corn unchanged to ¼ down, May 59¾-½, July 59¼; oats ¼-½ higher.

SELECT STOCKS RECORD GAINS

Other Issues Fail To Advance as List Shows Idling Tendency.

By The Associated Press

NEW YORK, Jan. 5—Selectivity remained the watchword of the stock market today and, while quiet strength was in evidence here and there, numerous issues were unable to make headway.

The list inclined to idle after a mild show of activity at the opening.

A number of utility preferred issues put on a relatively lively advance, reflecting, brokers said, the revival of reinvestment demand following tax selling last month.

Many traders continued to stand aside pending more light on what congress will do and how business will perform over the next few months.

Although rails trailed along with the rest of the "big board", satisfaction was derived from the official summary of last week's freight loadings which disclosed a much less than seasonal drop.

Motors were not particularly disturbed by this week's automobile production estimate of 87,510 cars, showing a decline of less than 2,000 from the previous week.

A bolstering market factor was seen in the statement of Chairman Kendall of the Association of American Railways, car service division, that the carriers were preparing to handle in the current quarter the heaviest shipments of new automobiles since 1937.

Financial quarters saw hopes of a revival of locomotive purchasing by the railroads in the announcement Delaware & Hudson had placed a contract for 20 high-speed engines at a cost of $4,000,000. It was the line's most substantial order for locomotives in 20 years.
